INTERIM America Announces New Services

INTERIM America announced today the expansion of its business services to include an array of critical services and resources to not only provide rapid support of interim executives on assignment but to aid corporation leaders and investment firms in creating enterprise wealth by lowering operating costs, expand businesses and executive objectives. These services include consulting, project management and outsourcing.

Management Consulting services are targeted to executive and onsite management teams to advance leader effectiveness, restructuring, develop business strategies, formulate deployment plans and coach execution results. Included in Management Consulting are Business Advisement services to support operating boards and executive teams in new product or business development, assessing potential acquisitions or underperforming business units.

Chris LaCorata, President of INTERIM America: "Plans are one thing; execution is an entirely different matter. Corporate executives most often cite the lack of skilled execution as the main contributor to failing to meet business objectives. That's why in these times of tight operating margins, no corporation can have extensive pools of experienced talents waiting for the next assignment. We are pleased to provide hands on experienced leadership to ensure the on-time, on-budget conclusion of business projects."

Adding to the array of services already provided by INTERIM America, Fortune 1000 companies can also now receive custom outsourcing programs. These programs focus on Customer Service/Order Management, Supply Chain Logistics, Human Resource Administration, Training and Development, Risk Management, Compliance and Equipment Maintenance Planning, and Parts Management.

INTERIM America provides management solutions for short-term business challenges, deploying seasoned professionals with extensive leadership and management experience on-site for 6-18 month periods.
